

The ability to share information and coordinate services across the many departments which provide services to the County's constituents and to do so quickly and efficiently is vitally important, particularly for children in the County's care. Additionally, studies to help evaluate how to avoid duplication of services and other ways the County can avoid unnecessary costs while still providing appropriate services to its constituents is pertinent to the management of the County and the oversight of the involved departments.

Since the inception of the interim governance structure, as part of their administration and oversight of the affected departments, the Chief Executive Office (CEO) has coordinated many data sharing initiatives involving the Departments of Children and Family Services (DCFS) and/or Probation.

With the recent changes to the interim governance structure, the Board may take action to delegate administrative oversight of the DCFS and/or Probation to the CEO for the purpose of coordinating specific data sharing initiatives so those initiatives can continue.
